Find the path to the shark.

DID YOU KNOW?

The cookiecutter shark is a small but fierce deep-sea predator. It is known for its unique feeding method, where it uses its sharp teeth to bite circular chunks out of larger animals. The wounds look like craters. This shark has bioluminescent organs on its underside. This adaptation helps it blend in with the faint light from above, making it nearly invisible to prey. This small shark is typically only 16-22 inches long.

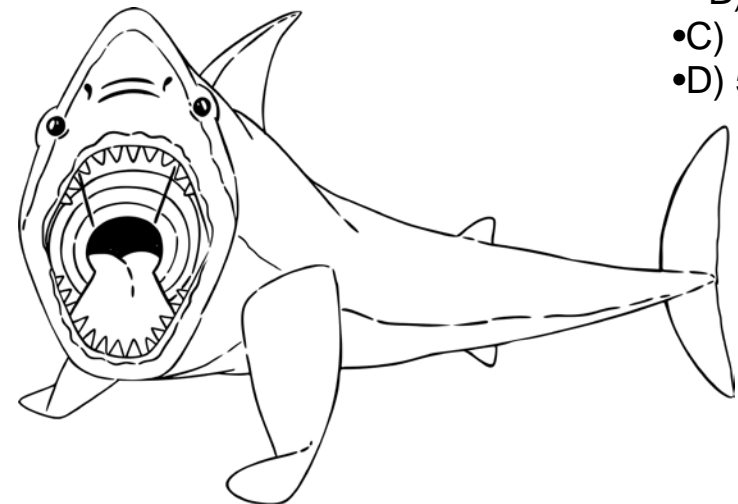

bio- is a _____ that means life
lumin is a _____ word that means light
-escent is a _____ that means a state of being

What do you think bioluminescence means?

Just in case you have student questions like I did:

A shark is actually a type of fish! One student asked about the wording for the multiple choice answers. We looked it up together and confirmed this is correct.

A megalodon is the largest shark species known. One student believed that it was not considered a shark species because it came before sharks. We looked this up and confirmed that it is a shark species.
